

Businesses seeking candidates for professional public relations positions are invited to call on a placement/referral service offered by the local chapter of the Public Relations Society of America, a non-profit organization for public relations professionals.

The free service provides employers with the names and resumes of qualified job-seekers from Portland and other areas of Oregon and southwest Washington, said Susan Jowaiszas, chairman of the job bank for PRSA's Portland-based Columbia River chapter.